ADVISE ELECTRIC COMPANY NOT TO OPERATE 24 HOURS.

Still Working on Plan to Give 24 Hour Service.

Ann Arbor, Michigan, Mar. 6, 1922. O. P. Schumann, Editor, Crawford Avalanche.

Grayling, Michigan. Dear Sir:

The communication of Mr. J. H. Wingard and your editorial in the issue of your paper of February 23rd, has been brought to our attention.

nas been brought to our attention.
We have been consulting engineers for the Grayling Electric company for the past four years, and are probably in a measure responsible for not having 24 hour service at Grayling. The Cempany has recognized the desirability of giving 24 hour service and instructed us to find if possible a feasible plan.

The present hydro-electric plant is on a comparatively small stream on a comparatively small stream where the fall is 12 to 14 feet. The present commercial lighting is heavy from dusk until about 11 p. m. with a light load prevailing until daylight, when the commercial load becomes when the commercial load becomes practically nothing. With a hydro-electric plant, as the load on the machinery becomes less than half the capacity of the machines the operation becomes very inefficient. For example at one-quarter to one-third load on the plant nearly twice as much of the water passing through the turbines is wasted than is converted into electrical energy. Under these conditions if 24 hour service be given it would wasted than is converted into electrical energy. Under these conditions if 24 hour service be given it would result in using fully one-half as much water in the day period as is now used at night, in carrying the day loads that might result from lighting and the intermittent uses of power such as for electric irons, washing machine, photographic studios, motors used in grocery stores, meat markets printing shops and the like. This additional use of water of the river would make it impossible to carry the night loads during the winter months, where the storage in the pond during the day is depended upon to make available sufficient water to carry the night load. For this reason we have advised the Grayling Electric Company not to undertake 24 hours service with the present hydro-electric plant.

A year or so ago we investigated the reriver in the neighborhood of Grayling.

An auxiliary steam plant would furnish the service but until there is at least a prospect of a steady electrical power demand sufficient to pay the added expense of fuel, wages and the use of the plant, we cannot advise the company to build such a plant

There are a number of communities of the size of Grayling enjoying the 24 hour electrical service but in no case do we know of one with an independent plant where the revenues from the electrical sales alone are paying the costs. The municipal plants in such communities are raising about half the costs through customers' rates and half by taxation. We are still working for a plan to furnish 24 hours electrical service without unreasonable increase in rates and hope to find a means through changing conditions that will warrant it in the near future.

TWO ROADS INSTEAD OF ONE.

In November we published in the Avalanche an account of a proposed change of the trunk line highway M 18 to go along the track from Frederic to Waters instead of thruthe farming district of Maple Forest as now surveyed. This change of the Board of Trade by Melvin A. Bates and E. S. Chalker who accidently heard of the proposed change. The Board of Trade passed a resolution against the change, and appointed a committee to take the matter up with the district engineer at the join meeting of the road commissioners of Crawford and Otsego Counties and to take it up with Mr. Rogers, the state highway commissioners applied for federal aid on the route as now designated, and Otsego county commissioners applied for federal aid along the track.

Mr. Chalker while at the convention of State Farm Bureaus at Lansing, at as representative of Crawford County farm bureau, with Mr. Bailey, County Agricultural Agent, took the matter up with Mr. Rogers and he gave as Mr. Chalker a letter stating that he calized the situation and was willing to build a 9 foot road on trunk line Mr. Bases and Mr. Chalker shile and the county would apply for federal aid on auxiliary road along the Michigan of Central track between Freddric and Waters, to be built as money was uvailable, there being no definite time set as to when same was to be finished. Last week the Grayling Independents played the Gaylord All City team in Grayling and defeated them by a score of 46 to 11. This, of course was humiliating to the Gaylord fant and it appears that the managers set out to get Grayling's scalp at the return game. It was a beautiful compliment that they paid our boys when they hired the best team in Michigan, if not in America, to come to Gaylord and do the job for them. It cost and do the job for them. It cost them dearly in a financial way and we fail to understand how it may profit them otherwise. Their victory is we fall to understand now it may profit them otherwise. Their victory is in no sense a victory for Gaylord. The one big thing they did was to give the patrons the pleasure of seeing the greatest game of basket ballever played in Northern Michigan. It was a wonderful game, to see the Grayling quintet buck up agains, these famous stars and the former certainly gave a remarkable account of themselves.

Unfortunately there were severa features that marred the pleasure of the game from the point of sportsmanship. It is rumored that an offer of $50.00 had been made to any member of the Gaylord contingent who would knock out Morrow, one of Grayling's guards, and it appears that severa attempts were made to do so. Some of our well known business men whose integrity cannot be impeached claim that they saw one of the Detroit nevers deliberately strike. the County Farm Bureau; Mr. Hanna the Commaission, and we appreciate the by the manner in which this matter has een handled, also the successful conclusion of same.

We are not objecting to the game and the star players that were placed up against Grayling but we do resent the dirty tactics that are reported to have been used. might.

The Grayling players are all homemen and have had a wonderfully successful season, winning all except two games, and much stronger teams than games, and muth stronger teams than the Gaylord quintet have gone down before them. They have been a credit to their home people, but nobody here wants them to play in any city where they cannot be given the usual sportsmanlike treatment. The men on our team are not complaining but the citizens here are. It is just such affairs as these that make the relationship between these two cities but the citizens here are. It is just such affairs as these that make the relationship between these two cities more or less strained. It should not be that way. It is time that the old spirit of "Win or ruin, no matter what the cost," should be wiped out. In order to be good sports we must be good losers and good winners, but do so fairly. If it cannot be that way between Grayling and Gaylord, it will be better that athletics be refrained from. It is unfortunate that sometimes a few people are able to establish the standard of principle for whole communities.

While a few Gaylord men were able to win a few money bets from Grayling fellows, they were selling out the principles of their fellow townspeople and the price wasn't worth it.

Shakespeare says: "He who steals my purse steals trash, but he who robs me of my good name, takes that which will not enrich himself but makes me poor indeed." Gaylord haz been robbed of its good name, and it has been done by some of their own people. Is it worth it? We cannot help but believe that there is much humility among the citizens of that fair town who know the truth about the game Monday night.

As I stepped into the clean, well-lighted, well-built dairy barn the wner said to me: "It's between me, hese cows, and the sheriff. Because, ny capital is limited my cows have got to pay; if they don't the sheriff will sell me out. My cows must pay and to make sure they will I must snow their individual records. That's why I belong to the cow-testing association."

The net incomes large or small, according to the way that feed is used. When production is increased through feeding and the second constant of the second constant vay that feed is used. When production is increased through feeding and reeding, the income rapidly expands, let a few real scrubs on my dairy farm will deflate the net income. In this country 5,000,000 farmers furnish feed and care for 23,000,000 lairy cows. Because of low-producing lairy cows a large part of that feed a wasted. Weighing out expensive feeds to a low-producing cow is like shoveling costly coal into the fire box of a leaky boiler; and the farmer who teeps such cows is seldom bothered with an income tax.

The dairy cow transforms raw materials—silage, hay, and concentrates, into the finished product—milk. In that way she furnishes a market for our feeds. Whether that market will be good or bad depends in part upon the way the cow is fed and in part upon the cow.

Selling Feeds to the Cow.

There is no better way to market the feeds grown on the farm than to the feeds grown on the farm than to feed them to a high-producing herd of dairy cows. The cow takes corn silage, grain, and clover hay, and converts them into a product for which there always is a ready sale. It is much easier to send the butterfat to the creamery than to haul the hay to town. Yes; and in the long run it is generally much more profitable, because it keeps the soil fertility at nome. Instead of selling hay and grain that may go the enrich the soil in some far-distant State, or in a for-sign country, the wise dairy farmer narkets such products through high-producing dairy cows.

In selling feeds to dairy cows the discriminate closely enough between these markets. If a wheat buyer offers a cent or two a bushel more than other buyers he gets our wheat; if wool to him; but if one cow returns $3 from a dollar's worth of feed and another only $2, we scarcely notice it.

Here is a difference of a dollar every

URGES MILLIONS FOR SHIP SUBSIDY

President in Personal Plea to Congress for Shipping Aid.

ASKS $125,0C0,000 FOR SHIPS

Harding, Before a Joint Session, Outlines the Administration Plan to Put the American Merchant Marine on Safe Basis.

Washington, March 1.-President Harding urged a joint session of congress to grant a subsidy to an American merchant marine. To do so, he said, would end the government's costly experiment in the shipping business and would create a strong second line naval defense for the nation. With his recommendation the President offered a plan for the subsidy. Its main points are: Liberalization of restrictive marine laws.

plng corporations equal to 5 per cent American flag.
Government to waive all such income taxes when the amount of taxes new ship construction. Establishment of regulations compelling 50 per cent of all immigrants coming to America to travel on American ships, Establishment of a merchant marine reserve comprised of sea-faring Americans in merchant marine serv-

All government transportation to be done in American ships, including army and navy transportation.

Extension of constwise shipping inws to include the Philippine Islands. Direct government aid to be with-eld when companies are earning more than 10 per cent profit, or, when government aid has been extended, all over 10 per cent to be turned back to the government.

Ten per cent of all customs duties to be devoted to a revolving fund (about $30,000,000 annually) to provide means of extending aid.

Tonnage taxes (amounting to about $2,000,000 annually) to be paid into same fund. Second Defense Line.

The President said the arms conference had materially lessened the country's naval defenses, and there was necessity for this being compensated, in part, by a strong fleet of merchant craft which will once more carry America's flag on the seven

"The relativity of strength (naval) among the powers would be wholly one of disappointing theory," he said, "if ours is to be a merchant marine inadequate for the future. I do not care to stress it as a means of defense. The war and our enforced outlay have already stressed that point.

"The merchant marine is universally recognized as the second line of naval defense. It is indispensable in time of great national emergency." The President reviewed at length the history of America's costly shipping enterprise during the war. He warned that the nation is going to have to pocket its losses in getting out of the shipping business. "The outstanding lesson learned." he said, "is that the government cannot profitably manage our merchant shipping. The most fortunate changes in the personnel of management would still leave us struggling with a policy fundamentally wrong and practically impossible.

$15,000,000 Yearly Cost.

However costly the experiment has been, the President observed, "today we are possessed of a vast tonnage, and a conviction of failure," and he considered the proposal he laid down us the best way out of a bad bargain for the government. The cost of such a program as he suggested he estimated would be about $15,000 -000 a year, with $30,000,000 the outside figure. In his address, the President did not go deeply into the details of the plan proposed. He merely pointed plan proposed. He merely pointed out its main features—10 per cent of customs duties to go into a revolving fund, the establishment or conversion of a $125,000,000 fund to lend shipping enterprises, and a compensation scheme based on speed and tonnage

This latter provision, the President emphasized, would make impossible the enrichment of any special interest at public expense, put an end to government assumption of all losses and leave to private enterprise the prospective profits of successful management. A distinguished audience heard the chief executive's message. The diplo-matic galleries were occupied and the spectators' galleries were crowded. Mrs. Harding occupied the president's Scrap Book for Child.

Hes like an hour-glass on its side in the blue waters of the Bay of Naples. The glamor of its old associations still persists, but its appeal to the many tourists who now swarm to its shores is the same, no doubt, as that which drew great Romans to it - its delightful climate, neither stimulating nor enervating, and its wonderful scenery of land and sea and sky.

Capri strange interest and beauty-crags, terraced hills, the blue sea ruffled white among harf-covered rocks; comparable sunsets; and among all of nature's beauties the scattered works of man from the ruins of ancient marble talaces to modern' villas.

Only a few miles across the sapphire bay Naples and the Neapolitan oast are spread out in all their bewildering features. One writer has described Capri and the neighboring as more like a miracle than an accident of nature, while another has complained that the scenery is "too much like theater curtains come to life." Nevertheless, every person who arrives at Naples under fair skies and beholds this littoral for the first time must be affected by its loveliness.

Capri is an esthetic wonder of the Its area is but six square world are so much toyeliness and so many interesting things packed in so little space. Artists have always flocked to Capri, each year bringing a fresh brood, confident in its ability to paint the unpaintable cliffs and sea. Some of these lingered on, some to marry the handsome Capri girls, and Howell's Englishman who came to the island for three months and stayed for thirty years is not a unique case in this respect. Acquired by Augustüs.

Capri was the first point in Campania where the Greeks obtained a oothold, and Augustus possibly did a far-sighted thing by securing it for the empire in B. C. 29, thus preventing its seizure by enemies or by pirates. There was certainly the matter of pirates to be considered. They have always been a pest of the Mediterranean. At the time of Pompey's celebrated campaign against the Mediterranean plrates, 67 B. C., they were well organized and intremched; they in various places. Centuries later the English actually did selze Capri, in 1806, and called it the "Little Gibral-They might have held it, perhaps, to this day but for the ill luck and incompetence of Col. The rule of the Canri Phares the ancient lighthouse, so close to the largest of the ruined palaces on Capri, is a paramount point in the archaeology of the island. The selection of Capri by Augustus was most likely fact that it was ideally situated for the Pharos. This was one of the most important lighthouses of antiquity.

as the elevation of the headland is

It takes no great stretch of the imagination to believe that Capri was a signal station—an imperial wireless station of ancient Rome. We know that the ancients signaled in various ways and over long distances. They signaled by beacon fires, by smoke, by pigeons, by flags, and by shouting from one sentinel to another.

Possibly the Publica acta (Senate Journal) and the Diurna acta (authorized news) were sent to Capri by signal ceive that such a system, organized most likely under Augustus, must have operated very smoothly after some years of experience and practice.

The mirror system would cost no money to operate, would be easy to use, and by it long signals could be sent. Under the practical rule of the Romans, beacon signaling was doubtess somewhat advanced and by it ong signals could be sent, perhaps by making the beacon flare up by adding periodically small quantities of oil. This is a mere surmise, without basis other than the general advanced character of Roman civilization, which lacked little we have today. True Detective Stories TEN YEARS LATER

NE of the first acts of William J. Flynn after taking New York office of the United States secret service was to order the arrest of two Italians, Vincenzo Lupo and Guiseppe Morello, on charges of money. But the Sicilians, anticipat ling such a move, had taken care that their trails were well covered, and at the trial they produced a flock of wit-nesses who swore to alibis which effectually prevented a conviction.

As Morello and his companion passed out of the courtroom, after the case against them had been dismissed Lupo remarked in a voice loud enough for Flynn to overhear; "Those pigs of American detectives haven't the brains to get the evidence they need. They'll never land us."

The man who later became the head of the secret service sald nothing a the time.

again came into contact with the two I never see anything," continued | Italians, and again the federal forces had to be content with the losing end of the argument.

This time the case was the famous one of the "Morristown Fives" -- fivedollar bills printed in precise initation of the currency issued by the National Iron bank of Morristown, N. J. Flynn's men found that the trall led directly into "Little Italy" in New York, right up to the door of a grocery store owned by Guiseppe de Primo. But there, apparently, it disappeared into thin air.

Flynn investigated the matter very carefully from the outside, but the only suspicious circumstance that he could discover was that De Primo was importing a much larger quantity of olive oil than his business appeared to warrant. On account of the duty, olive oil is usually imported in bar-rels and then canned or bottled on this side-the empty cans being shipped from Italy ready for use.

Feeling certain that there must be ome connection between the olive off and the mysterious counterfelts. Flynn first tapped several of the barrels consigned to De Primo. But these were filled to the brim with all of the preise quality mentioned in the bills of lading. Then, merely to make certain that he had not neglected any possible angle of the case, the secret service man ripped open one of the boxes of "empty cans." Instantly the mystery was solved. The cans contained roll upon roll of the "Morristown Fives," manufactured in Italy.

In the roundup which followed this discovery, Lupo and Morello were gathered in by the government agents and charged with passing counterfeit money. It was a moral certainty that the two Sicilians had had a hand in the plot-in fact. Flynn suspected that they were the ring-leaders-but none of the others would implicate them, even to save themselves. De Primo and his associates went to the penitentiary, but Lupo and Morello walked out of the courtroom still sneering at the "brainless American detectives."

During the years that followed, counterfeiting operations and Black Hand murders, extortion and blackto Lupe and Morello-almost. Appar ently they worked as far west as Chicago and south to New Orleans, but every time the police or the govern-ment agents started to close in on them, the pair slipped out through some legal loophole prepared in advance.

It was nine years after the original Luno-Morello case that Flynn got wind of the fact that the Italian colony in New York was planning a big counterfelting coup. The only thing lacking, according to the information which reached government headquarters, was

A few days later, a young Italian numed Comita, who claimed to be a printing expert who had been forced to leave Italy on account of participa-tion in a number of Mafia outrages, applied to Lupe for a position. The recruit was put through a grilling crossexamination, but Flynn had seen to it that he was supplied with the proper. answers to all the questions, and it wasn't long before the secret service had an operative planted in the very heart of the counterfeit plot.

Comito reported that the gang was operating from a small farm near Highland, N. Y., and that thousands of dollars in spurious currency was ready to be released

"But Lupo," he added, "Is preparing to take a trip to Italy and won't be back until the spring."

"Very well," replied Flynn, "we can walt. Just by low until he returns, Then we'll not the whole bunch"

It was early in the following yearten years after the first arrest and release of the Lupo-Morello combination -that the secret service sprung its trap and rounded up 16 Italians. ing the trial which followed, physiclone and other witnesses swore to allbis which had been previously prepared. But the government, aided by Comito's first-hand evidence and the testimony of the men who had been trailing the Italians, proved every point in its case, though it took the evidence of 300 people to do It.

As a result, Lupo and Morello went to the federal prison in Atlanta for 25 years, and Flynn was well satisfied with the 150 per cent interest upon his original investment of ten years' work.

Iron Is Man's Product. There is practically no from in the world except what man has made.

Gold, diamonds, other metals and jewels, we find in the earth in nuggets or crystals, but the only from we and in such form in nature are where they come from, to what sun planet they belong, we would not visit them if we could, for where iron does not rust animal and plant life cannot live. There is no oxygen in the vast spaces between the stars.-

Feel Stiff and Achy After Every Cold?

Do You Have Constant Backache? Feel Old and Lame and Suffer Sharp, Rheumatic Pains? Then Look to Your Kidneys!

DOES every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you worn-out and utterly miserable? Do you feel old and lame, stiff and rheumatic? Does your back ache with a dull, unceasing throb, until it seems you just can't stand it any longer?

are mighty hard on the kidneys. They fill the blood with poisons and impurities that the kidneys must filter off. The kidneys weaken under this rush of new work; become congested and inflamed.

Then look to your kidneys! Grip, colds and chills

It's little wonder, then, that every cold leaves you with torturing backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities. But don't worry! Simply realize that your kidneys are worked at such times and need assistance. Get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and give your weakened kidneys the help they need. Assist them, also, by drinking pure water freely, eating lightly and getting plenty of fresh air and rest. Doan's Kidney Pills have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's,'' Say These Grateful Folks:

Mrs. Grace Odgers, 318 Hancock St., Hancock, Mich., says:
"When I take coid. It settles on my kidneys and my back gets so lame I can hardly do my housework. Dizzy nervous spells bo the re me and specks float before my eyes and blur my sight. My kidneys become weak and irregular in action. When I get these attacks, I feel badly all over but never yet have a few of Doan's Kidney Pills failed to remove the trouble. Anyone who doubts the merits of Doan's should ask me about them. I don't think they have any equal and I can't too highly recommend them."

John F. Miller, stationary John F. Miller, stationary engineer, 198 S. State St., Niles, Mich., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills surely have helped me. I know they're a good remedy. Colds settling on my kidneys caused me an awful lot of trouble. Sharp pains cut through the small of my back. The kidney secretions were profuse in passage and highly colored, too. I finally began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and they sure did help me right from the start. I kept on with them and a few boxes of Doan's rid my back of the pains and put my kidneys in good shape."

Rev. C. E. Doty performed a quiet ceremony Saturday evening uniting in marriage, Miss Esther Peterson of this city and Mr. Clyde Peterson of Grand Rapids. The affair took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hans L. Peterson, the former being a brother of the bride and the latter a sister of the groom, they witnessing the ceremony. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hemming Peterson of Fxedetic, and is a graduate of the Grayling schools. She has been employed since letting school as bookkeeper in the Drs. Keyport and Howell offices, where patrons have found her to be most courteous and accommodating. Mr. Peterson who is employed in Grand Rapids, has spent the past month in Grayling and returned to his work again Tuesday night. Mrs. Peterson will continue her duties in the Doctors' offices until summer, when she will join her husband in Grand Rapids. The bride's many friends wish her much happiness.

BULLERTON AGAIN.

BULLERTON AGAIN.

Synopsis. — Under his grandfather's will, Stanford Broughton, society idier, finds his share of the estate, valued at something like $440,000, lies in a "safe repository," latitude and longitude described, and that is all. It may be identified by the presence nearby of a brown-haired, blue-eyed girl, a plebald horse, and a dog with a split face, half black and half white. Stanford at first regards the bequest as a joke, but after consideration sets out to find his legacy. On his way to Denver Stanford hears from a fellow traveler, Charles Bollerion, a mining englineer, a story having to do with a flooded mine. He has a "hunch" this mine is the "safe repository" of the will. Hollerion refuses him information. On the station platform at Atropia, just as the train pulls out, Stanford sees what appear to be the identical horse and dog described in his grandfather's will. Impressed, he beaves the train at the next stop, Anxels. Unable to secure a conveyance. Broughton selzes a track-inspection car and escapes, leaving the impression on the town marshal, Beasley, that he demanded the car, which is wrecked, and escapes on foot. In the darkness he is overtaken by the girl, the horse and the dog. After he explains his presence, she invites him to her home, at the Old Cinnabar mine. Broughton's hosts are Hiram Twomisty, caretaker of the mine, and his daughter Jeanne.

CHAPTER VII. Honorable Scars.

If I had been what I had invited Jeanie Twombly to imagine me: merely an ordinary drifting tourist set afoot in the wilds by circumstances over which I had no control, my cue to be on my way the following morning couldn't have been delayed much be-youd the appetizing breakfast to which I sat down a little after seven o'clock the rainbow, and had no intention of moving on before I could have my chance to dig for the pot of gold which is said to be the reward of successful rainbow chasers, I was casting about for an excuse to prolong my stay when Twombly, in accordance with the bit of talk which I had overheard in the loft chamber, took the matter out of my hands.

When we was talkin' about autermobiles and such, las' night, you let on to me that you knowed something about machinery," was the way he began. "If you ain't in a tearin' hurry to be goin' somewheres, maybe I could get you to hang 'round for a spell and show me how to take a steam engine to pieces so 't I could clean it up and keep it from goin' to rack and ruin.' With all the pleasure imaginable." I hastened to say, before he could have time to change his mind. White the cerulean-eyed maiden was carrying the dishes out of the kitchen, the old man donned overalls and a jumper, and a few minutes later I was you please or rather to so much of it as was oben to any visitor other than My heart went hot in sympathy for good old Grandfather Jasper. The scoundrels who had done him up had not been content with merely selling him the gold brick; they had let him spend thousands more for the pump ing machinery, after they, themselves, were well assured that he was merely throwing money away. I asked Daddy what he wished to do with the machinery. He said he was afraid it might be rusting inside, standing unused so long, and he wanted to take it apart; especially the steam engine. So I told him how to begin, and he fell to work; but in just a few minutes his awkwardness with the tools gave me a fit of the willies. 'See here," I said; "If you've go another pair of overalls and a jumper

"Sure pop. I have," he admitted; and that was how I discovered my first real job of honest-to-goodness work.

We stuck at it until noon, disassembling, and scraping rust, and polishing and offing, and incidentally finding the machinery in a great deal better condition than it had not right to Of course, I bunged my soft hands all up, and got as dirty as a piz, and all that; but that first foreroon is written down in my life as one of the most enjoyable I've ever known And when Daddy Hiram called the your half and we went across to the cubin to wash up for dinner, I was hungry. I think that forenoon measabout the only useful half-day's work I'd ever done; and the afternoon made it a full day. Say, people—It was great! For the first time in an idle, happy-go-lucky life I had a joi with a concrete object in view, and a keen ambition to see it through. I was thirstily eager to get that machiners in shape and to start those old he pumps, and this in spite of Daddy Hi ram's repeated assurances that it wouldn't do no good a-tall." During a hard-working interval of two weeks a number of things had happened. One was a visit from the peradolsh-looking Angelican who had impressed me with the fact that he belonged to the Ancient and Honorable Order of the Silver Star, I'll have known to yourself you didn't want to tell about that visit, because it proved what a tremendously lucky father Jasper's proper address!"

Two mornings afterward I found out the why and wherefore of the old transit and its "set up," as an engineer would say. Daddy Hiram and I were fige, waiting for breakfast to be put on the table, when Jeanle came in from the kitchen with a great stack of hot batter-cakes. As she darted out again after the coffee and bacon, she paused just a fraction of a second to put her eye to the telescope. I didn't see what kind of a signal it was that she passed to Daddy Hiram, but whatever its nature, it made him get action in a tearing hurry.

"Up into the loft with you, quick, Stannie!" he yipped at me; and as l went stumbling up the ladder in blind obedience I saw him hastily helping his daughter to remove my plate, knife and fork, spoon, coffee cup and chair; in other words, to obliterate swiftly and completely all signs of the presence of a third member of the family. In a minute or so there was a gruff ball from somebody outdoors and Daddy got up to go and look out, Why, hello, Ike, you old geezer!

he called. "What under the shinin' sun fetches you up on old Cinnubar this early in the mornin? 'Light down and come in; you're just in the nick o' time for breakfast."

While I was cudgeling my brain in vain effort to recall what, if any, memory association there should be awakened in me by the mention of an "Ike" person, this particular Isaac presented himself at the cabin door and dumped in with the stiff-legged walk of a man who has ridden horseback far and hard. I knew then why I should have been able to dig that memory association. This was Mr. Isaac Beasiev, my Augelic friend of the over grown silver star and the unshaven

His breakfast enten, Friend Isaac showed no disposition to hurry away --much to my chagrin. He took time to smoke a leisurely pipe with Daddy Hiram and to ask a lot of indifferent mestions about the drowned mine.

"Hain't heard nothin' tr'm yer own ers yit, have ye, Hiram?" he wanted to know, after—as it seemed to me— the subject had been pretty thoroughly

His pipe smoked out, the marshal prepared to take horse. Daddy went with him to the far side of the dum to me in diminishing cadences. After bit Daddy came back and called up after the final blass has been fired:

Jeanle served me in silence when took my place at table and the good old man stood in the doorway, keeping watch, as I made no doubt, against a possible second-thought return of Friend Isaac, the bristle-bearded. Throughout the working day which followed he never made the slightest reference to the episode of the mornient would have been buried in oblivion by those two simple-minded souls if I hadn't first spoken of it myself.

This I did in the evening of the same day, when Daddy had gone to make his entirely useless night round of the mine property. As on most evenings, Jeanie sat at her corner of the hearth, kultting, and I was filling a bedtime pipe.

"Jeanie," I broke out, "I wish you'd tell me why you and your father are so good to me. How do you know that 'm not the crazy criminal that other people believe me to be? I did steal car and get it smashed, you know."

"You are not a criminal and I am sure you didn't mean to get the car smashed. Besides, you had taken shoter under our roof." "You are true Bedouins," I laughed.

"Is that the code in the West?—your code?—to defend anybody who has enten salt with you?"

"And was that the reason you put the old transit at the window?—so you might watch for him?" "Of course."

he worst of the scale off and rattle it down so that it could be washed out from below, and was backing out to make my escape, when I found that one of the extra stay-rods was loose. At my asking, Daddy screwed up the nut on the outside of the boiler head to fighten the rod, and then passed the wrench in to me so that I could screw up the nut on the inside. To this good day I don't know just what did happen, but I guess the big S-wrench must have slipped off the nut while was pulling on it. But for two whole days they made me sit around and be waited on, hand and foot, and coddled and netted, those hey couldn't have done more.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Laboring Pumps.
On the third day after I had tried to brain myself in the old boiler I was pretty neurly as good as ever, and my two Good Samaritans reluctantly consented to my going back to work, Jeanie renewing the bandage on my broken head, and laying many injunctions upon Duddy Hiram to send me right back to the cubin if I didn't be-have; "behaving," in her use of the word, meaning that I was to take it easy on the job.

That sounded mighty good to me the way she said it. Most men, I fancy, are only overgrown children in the ense that they like to be fussed over by their womankind. Don't mistake me, please; I wasn't in love with her —then. Candidly, I don't think I knew what a real love was. But it was mighty pleasant to live in the same house with her, and to eat her delicious cooking; to be with her every day, and to have those undisturbed evening half-hours with her in front of the fire. If I had had to get out; or if there had been unother man . . but I won't auticipate.

In due time and after we had com-pletely overhauled the rusted and gummed-up machinery, Daddy and I happened upon a day ready to put fire under the boilers and than she did when she said "Of hundred years old, I shall never course," Since I had eaten their bread.
I was, for so long as I chose to stay, gripped me as we brought the wood for the formaces that bright, hot, July bread to the course of morning. By eight o'clock we had ninety pounds of steam pressure on and rubbed and scraped and reas the hollers, but we held off until it had climbed to the regular working pressure of one hundred and twenty These were pretty badly rusted Then I started the pumps; two big scaled, and to do the job properly, centrifugal suctions, mounted on a we had taken the manhole heads out platform in the shaft mouth and so patrorm in the shaft mouth and so interior of the shells, and had had a to follow the water level down—if it good-matured squabble us to which of should go down: mouse that it is should crawl inside to do the threw a stream six inches in diameter.

After the pumps were started and show, that they were working up to full enpacity, I rigged up a measuring gauge; a bit of wood for a float, with To settle it finally we flipped a coln a string tied to it, and the string passone of those inch-wide copper pending over a pulley in the shufthouse nies that Daddy carried for a pocket- roof-beaming with a weight on the end piece-and I wen the toss. The job of it. If the water level should go down, wasn't exactly a picnic, but I got along the float would sink with it, pulling all right until we came to the last of the weight up. A smooth board, with the weight up. A smooth board, with it, was stood up beside the weight to answer for a measuring scale,

At the end of the hour the float hadn't moved a hair's breadth; not a hundredth part of an inch, so far as we could see.

"I don't believe the pumps are workring!" I exploded, "Surely they'd make some little difference in the level unless that shaft's got all the underground water in the world to back it Those indicators must be out of whack in some way. Where does the discharge water empty itself?"

"Over in the left-hand gulch-into

"Show me." I directed We found the discharge from the pumps a little way below the end of the path: a ten-inch pipe which had been laid underground from the shafthouse, presumably to keep it from freezing in winter. The end of the pipe stuck out over the stream and it was projecting pretty nearly a solid ten-inch jet of water. The pumps were working all right; there was no doubt about that. I dug up enough of my inch streams would just about fill a tendinch pipe, and here it was, running full and pouring like another torrent into the gulch. So back we went to he mine buildings to pile more wood into the furnaces and to resume our watching of the indicator and its per di-marked scale.

Noon caught up with us after while--with nothing doing save that we were rapidly diminishing our woodpile. For a solid week we chopped down trees and split them up, Daddy and I, and kept the fires roaring under pumps whirring and grinding away at the shaft mouth—night and day, mine you; watch on and watch off. And, right straight through it all, that little ndicator weight I had rigged up stood stock still; never moved the width of one of the pencil marks I had drawn on its gauge board.

By this time my stubbornness was yielding something to the still more stubborn fact. If all this pumping badn't even started the flood toward its diminution, truly all the waters under the earth must be backing the unfailing well of that drowned shaft,

Toward the last I think we kept thing else, but at the end of the week gave in and consented to let the fires die down, though it was like pulldisappointing as it had been in the major sense; I was muscled up as jumper. It wasn't hard, but when I a mule, and the fierce toll of wood-burt . there wasn't snything to me an appetite for real work that fair-laugh at, then. Daddy says you'll be ly made me ache when I thought of stopping. We thrashed it out that everoom fire, after Daddy and I had finaly stopped the pumps and let the steam

"I reckon you hain't no call to take so hard, Stannie," Daddy said, after I had growled and grouched like a bear with a sore head over our failure. "After all, you must ricollect that it ain't no skin off 'm you if the old Cinnabar stays right where she is and soaks till kingdom come."

"No skin off of me?" I yelped, with a sort of wild laugh. "Listen-both of you," and then I told them the enheart-breaking story of Cousin Percy's letter and my grandfather's joke; of my starting out on the fan-tastic search for the girl, a horse and a dog-a search which would doubtless if I hadn't happened to ride in a Puilman smoker with the man, Charles I remembered afterward that I had

I remembered afterward that I had got just that far—to the naming of Bullerton—when Barney, the ple-faced collie, got up from his corner of the hearth, stalked to the door and began to growl. The next minute we heard rose, pushed the dog aside and opened the door. Then Jeanle and I, still sitting before the fire, heard him say gruffly: "Well, hello, Charley Buller What in Sam Hill are you doin up in this neck o' woods?

I turned to look at Jeanie--and In the moment when I had glanced aside she had vanished.

I remembered, with a sharp little flick of the memory whip he had given an expert which, as it seemed, he had backed up a year earlier with a thousand dol-lars of real money—the deposit in the Omaha bank made to cover my grandfather's bargain binder. What he had said was, "I'm reasonably certain that I discovered a way in which that mine expense.'

Had he really discovered a way?and with no better data than a study of the maps? Staring down at the black pool which Daddy and I hadn't been able to lower by so much as a fraction of an inch in a week's pumping, I doubted it.

I was stumbling out toward the en-

Looking out, I saw Bullerton sauntering over toward the shaft-house. Though I knew that some sort of a wrangle with him was inevitable, I was perfectly willing to postpone it, so I edged into the blacksmith shop and sat down on the anvil, hoping he might miss me and go away. But there was nothing coming to me on that bet.

FARM BUREAU NOTES.

(Continued from first page.) tory hond. I believe much more attention would be given to a choice of cows if we would think of them as markets for our labor and for corn silage, concentrates, and clover hay. Here is one place where the farmer has the market largely under his control. control.

Room for Improvement.

According to careful estimates the average dairy cow in the United States produces annually about 4,000 pounds of milk and 160 pounds of butterfat. According to 40,000 yeary individual cow records just tabulated by the Department of Agriculture, the average cow-testing association cow produces 5,980 pounds of milk and 246 pounds of butterfat a year. The world's records are 37,381.4 lbs. of milk and 1,205.09 pounds of butterfat. The average dairy cow seems to have plenty of room for improvement. ment.

Record Keeping Easy.

The keeping of individual cows records is easy. To test a half dozen samples of milk for butterfat requires; about half an hour, and the weighing of the milk, the estimating of the weight of the roughage, and the weighing of the concentrates require but little time. The testing of a composite sample of each cow's milk from two consecutive milkings once a month furnishes the figures from which the yearly production records can be computed. Any man competent to care for a dairy herd can posite sample of each cow's milk from two consecutive milkings once a month furnishes the figures from which the yearly production records can be computed. Any man competent to care for a dairy herd can easily learn to make the butterfattest and to keep feed and production records.

In Old Virginia.

A dairyman in Virginia says that when he began testing for production he had a herd of 31 cows. There being no cow-testing association in his neighborhood at that time, he did the work and kept the records himself. After weighing and testing the milk for a few weeks he reduced the number of cows to 26. These he fed according to known production and obtained a higher total yield than had formerly been obtained from the larger herd. Before the end of the year he reduced the number of cows to 20, and the 20 produced more than the 31.

Through rigid culling and feeding.

Knowledge Is Power.

Cow testing is not worth while to the dairyman who makes no use of the records and who continues the doubtful practices of former years, but cow testing is worth while to the dairyman who desires to feed and breed according to known production. In dairy-herd improvement, knowledge alone is nothing, but knowledge followed by intelligent action is everything. To the man who belongs to a cow-testing association, who studies the individual records of his dairy cows, and who selects, feeds, and breeds according to these records, cow testing is and always will be breeds according to these records, cow testing is and always will be worth while.

"Goldie."

Before a certain Missouri farmer joined the cow-testing association he owned a good herd in which was an old crippled cow named "Goldie." At old crippled cow named "Goldie." At that very time the owner was trying to sell her for $75. To his great surprise the milk scales and Babcock test not only placed poor old crippled Goldie at the head of the herd but at the head of the whole association. Her yearly production as shown by the records was 9.300 pounds of milk and 526 pounds of butterfat, and her yearly earning over cost of feed was $267.

were on test. Mr. A owned 16 cows whose average butterfat production was 306 pounds. Mr. Z owned 91 cows whose average was 155 pounds. For Mr. A's herd the average income over cost of feed was $75, and for Mr. Z's herd, 64 cents. The average one cow in the herd belonging to Mr. A produced more income over cost of feed than all of the 91 cows in the herd belonging to Mr. Z. It would require 117 cows like those in Z's herd to produce as much income over cost of feed as was produced by the average cow in A's herd. Evidently Mr. A is dairying for dollars, but it is not quite so clear why Mr. Z is in the dairy husiness. business.

Building Through Breeding.

Building Through Breeding.

The c are several ways of improving a dairy herd. Elimination of low producers increases average production, decreases total production, and usually increases net profit. Better feeding of the cows we now have increases average production, increases total production, and may increase net profit. Use of better sires increases average productions, increases total production, and always increases net profit.

Dams and Daughters.

Every dairy herd should be carefully selected. Every carefully selected herd should be headed by a good hull. A good bull gets productive daughters. Such daughters to 20, and the 20 produced more than the 31.

Through rigid culling and feeding according to production the herd was finally reduced to 10 well-bred, well-fed cows, and the 10 produced almost as much milk and butterfat as the 20. Since then the herd has gradually been increased in numbers until today it consists of 20 cows, and the 20 produce annually more than twice as much milk and butterfat and many times as much net profit as was produced by the old original herd of 31 cows.

Knowledge Is Power.

Cow testing is not worth while to the producing qualities of their and the 20 produce annually more than twice as much milk and butterfat and many times as much net profit and the 20 produced by the old original herd of 31 cows.

Knowledge Is Power.

Cow testing is not worth while to the producing qualities of their accessors. In future times a bull will be in expeat demand if he has proved ne nign-producing qualities of their ancestors. In future times a bull will be in great demand if he has proved sons and advanced-registry daughters especially if the daughters have records much above the records of high-producing dams.

Profits Made Certain.

Profits Made Certain.

Of all the enterprises of the farm none lends itself more readily than dairying to the keeping of records, and there is no other farm enterprise in which the lack of records is more fatal to success. With the Babcock test, the milk scales, the feed scales, and a working knowledge of the multiplication table, dairying need never be conducted at a loss.

The cow that produces enough to buy her feed and pay a satisfactory profit is the kind to be kept if we are dairying for dollars. Such a cow makes the dairy business interesting and lifts agriculture to high and still higher levels. May her tribe increase.—J. C. McDowell.

Please Look.

cords was 9.300 pounds of milk and lefter feed was $267.

A and Z.

In a certain association 511 cows

Please look again, in last week's axylanche, at the tempting list of coffers of choice, registered, purebred berlain's Tablets. They are easy to take and mild and gentle in effect. Give them a trial when you have need to come the putting of the conditions are considered to the conditions of the conditions are conditions.

Bankers and bankers' associations almost always prefer to see money put into a little well-chosen dairy stock on a farm than into anything

Twenty People.

There are twenty farmers who would do well to buy some of this rtock, and similar offers that I have arranged to have reported to me, if they had to borrow every dollar.

Where do you expect to get good cows if you don't send out and get some new blood? You can't get them from the calves you raise, for you use too poor bulls. You can't go a few miles from home and buy them, for they use just as poor bulls them, for they use just as poor bulls

A Little Gold Mine.

A Little Gold Mine.

In 1905 Ernest Hein, in Warrick County, Indiana, purchased his first pure-brieds—two registered heifers on borrowed- money. Since then only two registered heifers and two bulls have been purchased, with a total investment of $290 in pure-breds.

From this small investment he now has a splendid herd. From 19 cows, in 1920 he produced 45 tons of milk.

30 head of females and 10 bulls have been sold since the herd was established.

Mr. Hein attributes his success to his start with right stock and stickto-it-ness.

Who Gets Them?
To any Crawford County farmer who before May first, will ship in, to keep on his farm, a registered Holstein buil calf, or registered Holstein beifer, I will make a present of a year's subscriptions to Hoard's Dairyman. This is the standard dairy paper, very interesting, and comes every week.

For shipping in a second ery week.

For shipping in a registered Holstein cow I will give two years' subscription. For a registered Holstein bred heifer, a three years' subscription. For a mature registered Holstein bull, a five years' subscription.

REDUCTION IN PRICES OF WILLYS-OVERLAND CARS.

A doen reduction in prices of Overland and Willys-Knight cars, was announced Sunday by officials of The Willys-Overland Company. The new prices are effective immediately.

The new price of the Overland touring car, which by sheer merit of economy, quality and comfort has attained a dominant place in the light car field, is $550. One year ago, this car sold for $1035.

This is an additional reduction since the reduction of 42 per cent recorded from September 1920 to September 1921, a total reduction of 47 per cent in a year and a half, the most radical reduction in motor car prices in the history of the automobile industry.

CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REME-DY.

Nothing Se Good for a Cough or Cold.
"Everyone who has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy speaks well of it," writes Edward P. Miller, Abbottstown, Pa. People who once use this preparation are seldom satisfied with any other. It is excellent to allay a cough or break up a cold.

SMITH, (SEAL) Countersigned, FRANK SALES, Clerk. STATE OF MICHIGAN To the Circuit Court for the County of Crawford in Chancery: The petition of ORAMEL E. FULLER, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said estate, respectfully shows that the list of lands hereinafter set forth and marked "Schedule A," contains a description of all lands in said County of Crawford upon which taxes here assessed for the years mentor the time fixed for sale, and collection fee and expenses, as provided by law, extended against each of said parceis of land. Your petitioner further shows to the Court that said lands were returned to the Auditor General under the provisions of Act 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as delinquent for non-payment of said taxes for said years respectively, and that said taxes remain unpaid, except that lands included in said "Schedule A" for taxes, and which taxes never non-payment of said taxes for said years respectively, and that said taxes remain unpaid, except that lands included in said "Schedule A" for taxes of 1891, and which taxes remain unpaid. Your petitioner further shows that in all cases where lands are included in "Schedule A" as aforesaid for taxes of 1890 or of nay prior year, said lands have not been sold for said taxes or nave been heretofore sold for said delinquent taxes and the sale or sales as on made have been set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction, or have been cancelled as provided by law. Your petitioner further shows that the taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses as set forth in said "Schedule A" are a valid lien on the several parcels of iands described in said schedule. Your petitioner further shows that the taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses as set forth in said as the sale or nave been earceled as provided by law.
